'The Dance of Life' (1929) is the film version of a hit Broadway play called 'Burlesque', which starred Barbara Stanwyck. The original title was considered too racy for movie audiences, so the film producers bought the rights to a best-selling NON-fiction book about sex, 'The Dance of Life', just so they could use the book's title for this movie based on 'Burlesque'.

Ellis' idea that life is art, a dance, is appealing, particularly to those of us who already have an artistic bent, and it's a sentiment that most of us have had at one time or another. Ellis develops his metaphor by looking at some major institutions of life: religion, morality, the arts in general and writing in particular.
